Formal requirements

- Get your research question accepted by 11th October

- Maximum 4500 words (not including references, appendix, front page and so on)

- Answer your research question

- APA style referencing

- No plagiarism

- Front page - (including name, not candidate number, word count)

- Introduction

- Literature - (often part of the introduction, but you do you) What have other scholars argued before (previous theory)? And what have they found (previous empirical results)?

- Theory - Explain the causal logic of the argument that your term paper is making. What sort of empirical outcomes/data do you expect to find based on these arguments?

- Method - (does not have to be fancy, but you need to demonstrate that there is a method to you madness and that you have some reflections around your choice of method)

- Empirics/data

- Results/discussion

- Conclusion

- Bibliography/References
